

How to Dispose of Outdated Appliances

HAUL-AWAY, LLC

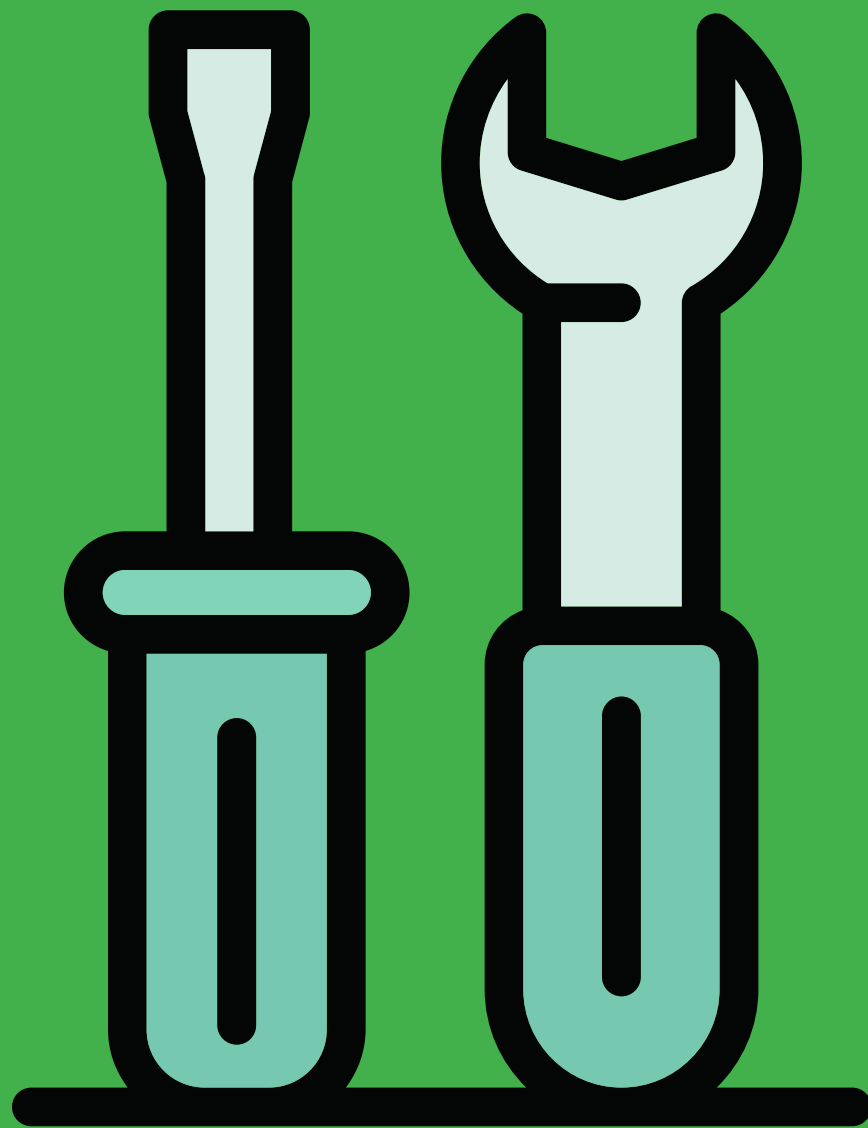

HAUL-AWAY, LLC

Haul Away: www.haulawayllc.com

APPLIANCES SHOULD NOT BE DISASSEMBLED

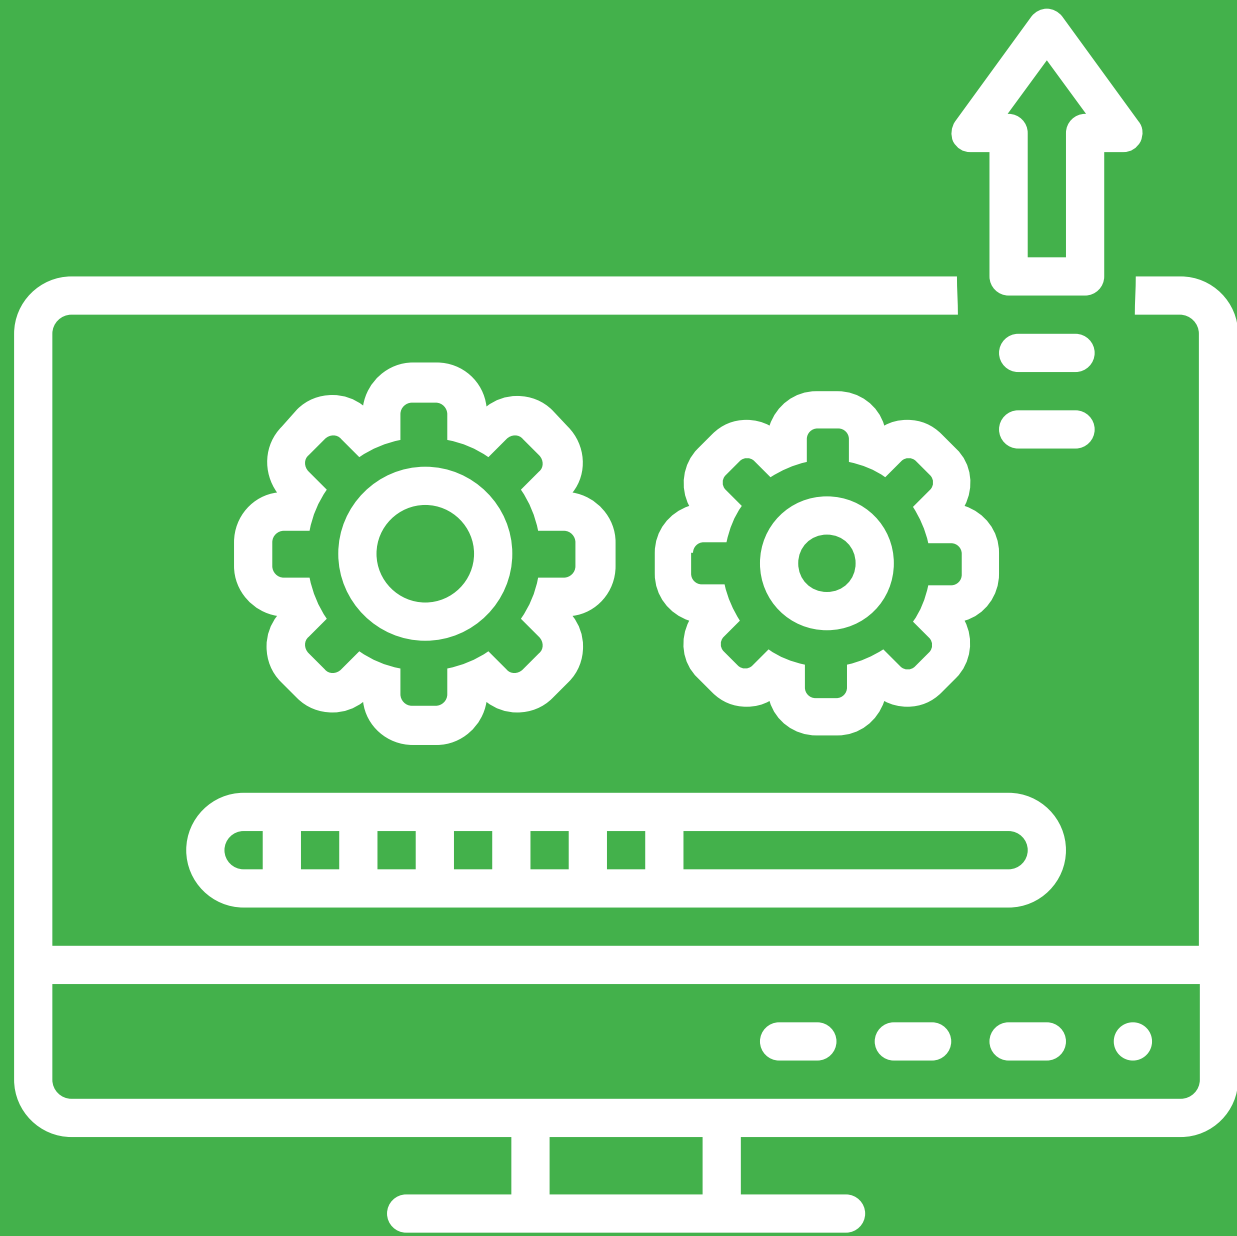

Attempting to disassemble the appliance for components or other purposes is not recommended. Larger appliances may include potentially hazardous elements or toxic foam insulation.

SELL OR GIVE

If the item is still in working order or can be fixed, there is someone out there who would want to purchase it from you. Offer the appliance for sale or make it available for free pick-up to anybody who wants it.

REMOVING THE OLD APPLIANCE FROM THE BUNDLE

When you buy a new washer or dryer from a store, you may be able to have the old one taken away as an option. You should look for stores that offer a deal where you get a free removal as part of your upgrade.

CONTACTING A JUNK REMOVAL SERVICE

Call your local debris removal company, landfill, or garbage professionals and inquire about pick-up service options. Keep in mind that if you're asking how to get rid of a certain equipment, be precise.

www.haulawayllc.com

TRASH COLLECTOR

Find out if your town has a trash service by looking up their website. You can see what services they offer and how to get rid of a refrigerator or other old things this way.

www.haulawayllc.com

TO GET RID OF THINGS, RENT A DUMPSTER

Rent a dumpster for your old appliances and other rubbish. Consider this option if you're getting rid of your appliance as part of a larger renovation job that includes a lot of construction trash.

www.haulawayllc.com

MADE BY:

HAUL-AWAY, LLC

www.haulawayllc.com